The Seventh Annual Meeting of the Naval Militia Association of the United States

THE seventh annual meeting of the Naval Militia Association of the United States took place on board the old U. S. S. sloop of war Dale, at Baltimore, on June 13-14. Representatives from nearly all the Militias on the Atlantic Coast were present and also delegates from California and Ohio.

The principal matter before the meeting was the general subject of a National Naval Reserve, which was discussed at considerable length. The principal speech of the day was made by the Assistant Secretary of the Navy, who spoke of the great need of the navy for a reliable emergency force and of the difficulties in the way of building one up. He referred to the great advantage the militias had over the regular service in that while they understood the needs and requirements of the service they were also in much closer touch with the general public, from whom a reserve would have to be, to a great extent, recruited, and he asked for the patriotic assistance of the militias in developing a proper public sentiment on the subject and in having framed and passed at the proper time suitable legislation on the subject. Later on, in his second address to the meeting, the Assistant Secretary stated that contrary to the opinion of some the Department was not at present advocating any definite legislation, that the subject was a very big one and required thorough and open discussion, and in answer to a question said that if desired by the Association the Department would detail officers to confer with a committee representing the militias, to consider the best thing to be done. Capt. W. W. Swift, U. S. N. of the Naval War College, who as executive officer of the Indiana and commanding officer of the Prairie has seen a great deal of the naval militia, was also present representing the Department, and spoke appreciatively of the militias that had come under his command, and assisted the discussion of the subject very materially by putting questions to the various other speakers as their remarks suggested points to him, looking at the matter principally from the Navy standpoint.

COL. NORMAN M. SMITH,
Former Commander, Du Quesne Grays
(Eighteenth Infantry)

Captain Swift was followed by Ensign Nelson, of Pennsylvania, who read a carefully prepared statistical paper on the available sources of supply for a reserve, and the limitations as to the kind of and time for training which the nature of their various employments would impose upon each class, and at the conclusion of his remarks the Assistant Secretary requested that he be given a copy of the paper for the use of the Department. The whole matter was then thrown open to general discussion, with the result that it was finally decided not to advocate any legislation on the subject of a National Reserve at present, but to advocate the passage of the Naval Militia bill prepared at the last meeting of the Association, which provides in effect that upon the request of the Governor of any State the Department shall detail regular service officers and supply equipment for the instruction of its militia. That all such militias whose officers and men bring themselves to the standards of efficiency set by the Department shall be entitled to certain appropriations, and the President shall be entitled to call upon them as organizations for service when needed.

It was thought that this would increase the efficiency of the militias as at present organized, that in the meantime the Dick National Guard bill (H. R. 11,654), which was discussed at considerable length, would probably have passed, and its workings could be observed and subsequently, unless the Department had something specific to suggest, a bill could be drawn up for the Naval Militia along the lines of the Dick bill.

The Association adjourned in the afternoon of the second day to meet next at Old Point Comfort, and the request was made that officers should endeavor to attend the meeting in their own vessels.

The meeting was felt to be a very important one in that it developed the fact that there was fewer differences of opinion than ever before among the delegates as to the proper line of development of the naval militias and as to what should be the present policy of the Association, and demonstrated the cordial relations existing between the Navy Department and the militias, both individually and through their association.

During their stay in Baltimore, Commander Geer and the officers of the Maryland Battalion entertained the delegates at luncheon on the Dale, and also at dinner at the Baltimore Yacht Club, which was reached on board the U. S. S. Sylvia.

As the weather was warm, the Friday afternoon and Saturday meetings were held on board the "Sylvia," which got under way and took all hands down the bay hunting breezes

COL. NORMAN M. SMITH

Colonel Norman M. Smith, Eighteenth Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, a brilliant and popular officer, was commissioned captain Company "F" October 14, 1878; major, April 8, 1881; lieutenant colonel, Feb. 5, 1883; colonel, Sept. 30, 1884; re-elected, Oct. 1, 1889, and Octover 1, 1894; served with the regiment throughout the Spanish-American War.

He was a private in Commonwealth Artillery, P. V., April 19, 1861; enlisted for three years in the Anderson Troop, Pennsylvania Cavalry, Nov. 30, 1861; captain troop "D," Fifteenth Pennsylvania Cavalry October 10, 1862; res. as captain "A" May 8, 1863; adjutant, Nineteenth Pennsylvania Cavalry, Sept 1, 1863; captain "C" July 1, 1864; res., May 31, 1865; breveted major for "distinguished gallantry" at the battle of Hollow Tree Gap, Tenn., December 17, 1864; lieutenant colonel for distinguished gallantry at the battles of Anthony's Hill and Sugar Creek, Tenn., December 25th and 26th, 1864.

ANNUAL MEETING OF ASSOCIATION OF MILITARY SURGEONS OF THE UNITED STATES.

The eleventh annual meeting of the Association of Military Surgeons of the United States was held at Washington, D. C., June 5, 6 and 7.

The Association was honored at its first session by the presence of President Roosevelt, whose forceful address was accorded deserved praise.

At no previous meeting has there been such an abundance of scientific business—more than sixty papers were given place on the programme.

Lieutenant-Colonel Valery Havard, U. S. Army, was the successful competitor for the Enno Sander prize for the best essay on "The Most Practical Organization for the Medical Department of the U. S. Army."

The other papers were of such uniform excellence as to forbid discriminating mention.

other members of the Army, Navy and Marine Hospital Service. As to the States, when I mention the fact that Maine and California, Minnesota and Alabama were represented, it goes without saying that Pennsylvania and the other intermediate States sent delegates.

Great Britain was represented in the person of Colonel Exham, of the British Army, and Colonel Neilson, of the Canadian Army; France sent Colonel Niemier; Italy, Dr. Enrico Castello; Mexico, Lieutant-Colonel Moline; and Japan sent Captain Kimura, of the Navy, and Captain Tamura, of the Army.

Papers were presented by nearly all the foreign delegates; all instructive and entertaining.

The past year, under the presidency of Lieutenant-Colonel John Van R. Hoff, U. S. A., has been a very successful one, more than 250 new members being added to the Association.

Boston was selected as the place of meeting in 1903, and the following officers were elected:

President, Brigadier General Robert A. Blood, Surgeon General Mass. V. M.; First Vice President, Medical Director John C. Wise, U. S. N.; Second Vice-President, Surgeon General Walter Wyman, U. S. M. H. S.; Secretary, Major James Evelyn Pilcher, U. S. A. Ret.; Treasurer, Lieutenant H. A. Arnold, Asst. Surg. N. G. P. The last three were re-elected.

The Association is doing excellent work, and its prospects never were brighter. It publishes a journal, which is the leading military medical journal of the world.

The officers representing Pennsylvania comprised Colonel J. K. Weaver, Majors W. S. Stewart, Wm. J. Ashenfelter, George H. Halberstadt, Andrew S. Stayer, Ralph W. Montelius, and Lieutenants Herbert A. Arnold, J. Mark Peters, Edward Stieren, John L. Brubaker.

Late Quartermaster, Lieutanant HORACE W. WALTERS, Died Aug. 11, 1898
Battery "C," Penna. Volunteer Artillery

Thursday afternoon was spent at Washington Barracks, where an audience of more than 1,000 people witnessed an exhibition drill of the hospital corps Company of Instruction. After inspection they were put through the school of the soldier, the setting-up drill, litter drill, the travois and the ambulance drill.

The exhibition of the pitching, striking and packing of a regimental field hospital was a most interesting feature, and was accomplished while a number of supposedly wounded men were carried off the field, placed beneath trees and cared for as they would be in action. In a surprisingly short period of time the tents were erected and furnished, and the kitchen turning out sterilized water at drinking temperature, soups, brooths and other light nourishment.

The afternoon of the 6th was given over to a delightful sail down the Potomac on the Dolphin.

The attendance at this meeting was larger than usual, embracing Surgeons General Sternberg, Wyman and Rixey, as well as many

IT HAS been remarked by one of the prominent field officers in the Guard that a successful company commander is fitted to be at the Court of St. Petersburg. The Captain of to-day is supposed to be a diplomat, recruiting officer, missionary and instructor, and, at this season of the year (rifle practice) "train men to kill men."

To show the enthusiasm of some officers in this particular direction, we note an incident which occurred in the Thirteenth Regiment last week.

One of the captains being desirous of qualifying his men before camp, arranged for a clam bake. This was an incentive, and the result was the qualification of eighteen men. There were a few members from other companies at the range, and they were also invited. One of these, a corporal, remarked: Who's putting up for this?" It was the old story of the burden of the work falling back on the captain.

Would it not be proper to allow expenses of this kind, which are really in line with good military business to be taken from the annual appropriation? Or if the captain was allowed a sufficient amount, as in New York State, from the uniform fund, this might be appropriated for just such purposes. The general opinion prevails that the personal expenditures of the line are in many cases too much for the income of the officer, and the service frequently loses an efficient captain or lieutenant on this account.

THE carrying of arms by irresponsible bodies and the assimilation of the uniform of the National Guard of Pennsylvania is calling forth much adverse comment, especially at this time, when a section of our Commonwealth is in a state of unrest through the striking of 150,000 coal miners. These semi-military organizations are holding encampments in different sections, and many persons, unacquainted with the facts, believe them to be members of the Guard. It is the policy of our service, particularly in the affected districts, to avoid display in order to prevent possible agitation.

It has been pointed out by the "Journal" and several prominent military correspondents in the State that legislation should be enacted prohibiting the indiscriminate wearing of regulation uniforms, and positively forbidding all organizations, other than those provided for by the present law, carrying arms. This, of course, would accord the privilege to all veteran organizations and military schools:

It is stated on good authority that not less than three thousand persons belong to semi-military bodies existing under the supervision of one head in the State of Pennsylvania. While the object of this society may be perfectly peaceful, nevertheless, the fact of its bearing arms, and in many cases, being made up of veterans of foreign armies, is a detriment to our State institution. In times of great emergency there is nothing to prevent these bodies from taking up arms against the constituted authority. We trust the evil may be remedied in the near future.

Notes

SECOND REGIMENT

Colonel Dechert has announced the following appointment on the non-commissioned staff: Battalion Sergeant Major John M. Schniepp to be Regimental Sergeant Major. Sergeant Major Schniepp has served in the Second Regiment for over ten years, and was Sergeant in Company "K" during the Spanish-American War.

Colonel Dechert and staff reviewed the Battalion of Cadets of St. Joseph's College on Tuesday evening, June 17, 1902. The armory was crowded, and the review and exercises very well done.

The Second Battalion, under command of Major Edward S. Williams, took a practice march to Eddington, Bucks county, Pa., on Saturday, June 21, and camped over night; they returned on Sunday evening. Officers and men thoroughly enjoyed the trip.

As a result of the competitive squad drills held at the armory on Tuesday evening, June 3, 1902, Colonel Dechert presented the prizes to the winning squads; first prize was won by the squad from Company "C," second prize by squad from Company "K," honorable mention to squad for Company "B."

FOURTH REGIMENT

The following members of the non-commissioned staff have been honorably discharged, owing to pressure of business:

Frank M. Keck, formerly Hospital Steward, and Frank M. Cooper, Battalion Sergeant Major. Appointments have been announced as follows to fill the respective vacancies:

Dr. J. Treichler Butz and Corporal Heber H. Thompson, of Company "F."

An excellent hospital corps has been organized at Allentown, each company being charged with one member. Major Cawley and Hospital Steward Butz will have charged of the same. The members are rapidly acquiring the duties peculiar to the service.

FIFTH REGIMENT

The elections for Captain and First and Second Lieutenants will be held on June 25 and June 27.

It is expected that Captain Elmer K. Roop, formerly Adjutant under Colonel Burchfield, will soon re-enter the Guard.

SIXTH REGIMENT

I. Until further orders the Regimental formation will be as follows:

First Battalion.—Companies "E," "K," "L," "M."
Second Battalion.—Companies "C," "I," "B," "H."
Third Battalion.—Companies "A," "G," "D," "F."

II. Major Charles F. Lumb is hereby assigned to the command of the First Battalion, Major James L. McBlaine to the command of the Second Batalion, and Major Louis R. Walters to the command of the Third Battalion.

III. Lieutenant Charles A. Maginniss, Lieutenant Walter E. Baker and Lieutenant Joseph W. Thompson, Battalion Adjutants, are hereby assigned for duty with the First, Second and Third Battalions respectively.

IV. In the absence, on leave, of Major Charles F. Lumb, Captain Leon E. Dagit, Company "E," will assume command of the First Battalion, and in the absence, on sick leave, of Major James L. McBlaine, Captain William J. Macklem will assume command of the Second Battalion.

V. Company Commanders will detail one man from their respective Companies to report to Lieutenant Malcolm T. Sime, Assistant Surgeon, at Armory, N. E. cor. Thirteenth and Spring Garden streets, Philadelphia, at 8 o'clock P. M., on June 11, 18 and 25, and July 2, 1902, for instruction in the work of the Hospital Corps. Transportation will be furnished.

By order of COLONEL CORYELL.
JOHN H. MINDS,
Adjutant.

EIGHTH REGIMENT

Majors Halberstadt and Farquhar intend driving from Pottsville to Gettysburg July 10th.

Captain George Dyson, who commanded Company "F," Fourth Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, is mentioned as a likely candidate for the captaincy of Company "K" at Saint Clair.

The armory project for Companies "F," of the Fourth, and "H," of the Eighth, and the Third Brigade Band, has fallen through for lack of sufficient funds and public interest. The site, which was practically purchased, was one of the finest in the city. The foundation and the retaining walls had already been constructed, and the money spent in this work is an absolute loss. It is now suggested that an armory costing about $2,500 be erected in a more remote part of Pottsville.

NINTH REGIMENT

The cash prizes recently offered for the companies passing the best inspection will be awarded in the early fall.

Captain Charles Colony was greatly handicapped at his recent inspection through the absence of his second lieutenant. It is said that the captain was obliged to act in the dual capacity of company commander and chief of second platoon.

Lieutenant Kenny has hit on a novel plan to advance the interest of the regiment. He has organized a battalion of 250 boys of the several public schools and formed them into five companies. They are fully uniformed and equipped. It is expected that many of them will enlist in the regiment when they arrive at the proper age.

TWELFTH REGIMENT

Harry C. Lilley, of South Williamsport, formerly a private in Company "G," Twelfth Regiment, was convicted in the June term of criminal court, in Lycoming county, of stealing State property from Company "I," Twelfth Regiment, and sentenced to six months in jail. The property was recovered.

Company "D," Twelfth Regiment, on Memorial Day placed flowers upon the graves of all of its deceased members, and also upon that of Chaplain W. F. Rich.

On June 17 Corporal Sheffler Wise was unanimously elected Second Lieutenant of Company "G," Twelfth Regiment, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Lieutenant Ralph S. Koser.

Lieutenant Charles F. Graves, Company "D," Twelfth Regiment, has been granted leave of absence until July 1.

Corporal Charles W. Bastian, Company "D," Twelfth Regiment, has been reduced to the ranks.

William C. Gretzinger, of Lewisburg, Quartermaster Sergeant of the Twelfth Regiment, has been appointed Battalion Adjutant, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Battalion Adjutant John K. Clement.

Private Frank Calvert, Company "G," Twelfth Regiment, marker on the battalion rifle range at Williamsport, recently killed a five-foot black snake in the target closet.

EIGHTEENTH REGIMENT

Colonel Frank I. Rutledge is working hard to have his command excel all former records in camp attendance and general inspection work.

On the occasion of July 4th, when President Roosevelt will visit Pittsburgh, the "Dupuesne Greys" (Eighteenth Infantry) expect to turn out companies of at least twenty solid front.

BATTERY "B"

Captain Wm. T. Rees is a firm believer in discipline, and is fast rounding the members of the organization into his way of thinking.

The members of the Battery and the friends of Captain Wm. C. Wallace have sent a petition to General John A. Wiley, commanding the Second Brigade, asking for the appointment of Captain Wallace as aide-de-camp on the Brigade Staff, there being a vacancy caused by the death of Captain Frank Nesbit. Captain Wallace's worth as a soldier is well known, especially his untiring work at Somerset, Pa., in 1901.

The members of Hampton Battery fittingly remembered their departed comrades on Memorial Day by holding services at the Battery Monument in Allegheny, and placing a handsome flag and large floral wreath, as well as cut flowers on the graves of Captain Alfred T. Hunt, Lieutenant Stewart and Privates Starkey, Rodgers, Duncan, Hand and Loomis.

Captain Rees has discharged, wihout honor, twenty-one men who failed to attend drill, and in every case their places have been filled with more desirable material.

Lieutenant John S. Purucker has secured a revolver range near the Beechwood Boulevard.

Corporal J. W. Clemmens is one of the indefatigable workers in the Pittsburg Guard.

Lieutenant Powell will have charge of the camping party, and expects to make a record in putting up the canvas and getting camp in good shape.

An order, which has been accepted under date of June 16, was received to hold an election to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation on January 15 of Lieutenant A. W. Marks. Second Lieutenant James C. Stewart will be advanced to First Lieutenant, and it is more than likely that Sergeant John M. Ryall will be the choice for Second Lieutenant. The election takes place Tuesday, July 1.

SHERIDAN TROOP

Captain C. S. W. Jones states that he expects "The overland riders" to present a fine escort to the President on July 4th.
